Elsewhere on the Front Calmness Prevailed.

FIVE DISASTER VICTIMS BURIED

(Special to The Herald.)
Arlington, Va., Sept. 11.—Escorted by an honorary guard of bluejackets and a firing squad of marines, the bodies of five of the seamen of the wrecked U. S. S. Memphis were taken to the Arlington National cemetery today and buried there. The victims were Arthur H. Porter, J. Quinn, N. M. Townsend, L. Crozier and a sailor who was badly mutilated that he could not be identified.

Eugene LeVangie, an 18-year old high school boy of Newfields, is at the Portsmouth Hospital in a serious condition, suffering from severe burns received on Saturday by coming in contact with an electric wire carrying a current of 13,000 volts. He was brought to this city in the afternoon and is under the care of Dr. Herbert L. Taylor. The entire upper part of his body, from shoulder to hips, is severely burned and he is considered as being on the dangerous list.

No certain knowledge of how the accident happened has been learned but it is supposed that he fell while climbing one of the poles of the Rockingham Light and Power Company, at Physide, where he was attending a picnic, and in falling from the pole, came in contact with the high tension wire. Dr. Taylor was summoned and after treating the lad had him rushed to the hospital for further treatment.

Predicted That Unless a Settlement is Reached One of the Greatest Labor Conflicts Will Develop

CHAS. L. GRANT BADLY INJURED IN ACCIDENT

Sustains Fracture of Leg and Other Injuries When Large Touring Car Runs Into His Carriage.

Road Commissioner Charles L. Grant of York Village was seriously injured on Sunday afternoon while driving along the state highway between the village and York Corner. His leg was broken and he was badly shaken up. Today his condition was reported as being as comfortable as can be expected under the circumstances, he being over 70 years of age.

The accident happened about quarter to three when a large touring car attempted to pass Mr. Grant on the road, and as it did so another automobile from the opposite direction attempted to pass by also. In trying to avoid the second machine the driver of the touring car ran into Mr. Grant's wagon, smashing three of the four wheels and otherwise badly damaging it. Mr. Grant was thrown out and dragged a distance of fifty feet. The horse was knocked down, but uninjured. As Mr. Grant was thrown to the ground the wagon wheels ran over his leg, breaking it. He remained conscious all the time but suffered much pain. Three local doctors, Varrell, Smith and Allen attended the injured man, after which he was removed to his home.

(Special to The Herald)
New York, Sept. 11.—While threats of a great sympathetic walkout in all trade unions involving 750,000 workers, hung over the city today, the strike of the traction employees in all quarters spread. Organizer Wm. B. Fitzgerald, leader of the strikers, declared today that fully 11,000 men were on strike. For the first time the service on the subway and L lines of the Interborough Rapid Transit Co. dropped below normal, while service on the surface lines was practically at a standstill during the early hours. Hugh Frayne, organizer of the American Federation of Labor, declared that a general strike would be on before the end of the week. Indications were that unless some method of reaching a settlement in the traction strike were reached, it would develop into one of the greatest labor conflicts that has ever taken place. To prevent this great conflict, it is understood Mayor Mitchell and Chairman Strauss of the Public Service Commission are working on a plan to force both the traction employers and employees to submit their differences to arbitration. Considerable rioting took place during the darkness of early morning, but this practically ceased at sunrise. The buses were surrounded by crowds that cheered the men taking out cars but the police had the situation well in hand. Traffic congestion was serious in several parts of the city. Blockades were frequent on all the bridges connecting Manhattan and Brooklyn. The first men to go out in sympathy with the carmen were drivers employed by two firms that have been furnishing sand for the N. Y. Railways Co. power plant. Strikebreakers were engaged to take the men's places. Pros. Gompers left this city for Newark during the forenoon without making his position known.

TREMENDOUS BATTLE NOW IN PROGRESS

Between Russian and Roumanian Forces and Bulgars and Turks in Section of Roumania Bordering the Black Sea

DELEGATES MUCH CLOSER TO AGREEMENT

Such the Report From New London Conference as to Tentative Plan.

(Special to The Herald)
New London, Sept. 11.—Hope of an early recommendation to the American and Mexican governments for a plan for protection of the international boundary was stronger today than at any time since the joint American-Mexican commission gathered here. It was stated on official authority that both commissions are much closer to agreement on a plan for mutual protection of the border, American and Carranza troops, and that only the first hand evidence of actual conditions there at present is needed before recommendations are made. Gen. Bliss, Asst. chief of the general staff, will furnish that information to the commission.

London, Sept. 11.—Several dispatches today confirmed earlier reports that a tremendous battle was developing in that section of Roumania along the Black Sea. It is apparent from this news that the Russian and Roumanian commanders had carefully selected the field on which they wished to meet the advancing Bulgarian and Turkish forces. The same dispatches brought the significant news that the Russians had resumed their offensive in Bukovina and were attacking the Austrians along their entire front. This was taken as indicative that the Roumanian advance into Transylvania had been so successful that the Russian army was safe from attack on its extreme left flank and could proceed with vigor against the forces defending the passes leading to the plains of Hungary. While interest in the spectacular campaign centered in the fight in Roumania military experts today said that success for the Turkish-Bulgarian forces in the Black Sea region would gain them far but little benefit.

The excursion that was run by the Boston & Maine railroad on Sunday from Laconia and points on the Lake Shore railroad to Hampton Beach was patronized by only one hundred persons, owing to the lateness of the season.

FULL DETAILS OF MEMPHIS WRECK

U. S. Cruiser's Boilers Burst Before She Was Thrown Upon Rocks.

Washington, Sept. 11.—Full details of the recent wreck of the armored cruiser Memphis in Santo Domingo harbor, received at the navy department from Rear Admiral Pond, show that two of the cruiser's boilers burst before she was thrown upon the rocks by the tidal wave.

Earlier reports had indicated that breaking of a steam pipe crippled the ship and caused the large number of injuries among members of her crew. Of the 40 men who lost their lives in the wreck, 26 were on board a launch swamped while returning from shore with the ship's baseball team. Five other men were drowned in a launch lowered after the explosion.

MILITIAMEN VOTE TODAY ON BORDER

Laredo, Texas, Sept. 11.—Interest in the Maine election today generally conceded to be a national fad, was reflected here where the 2nd Maine Infantry voted for their choice for governor, two U. S. senators, four congressmen and other officials. The Maine legislature was one of those that voted to allow militiamen on the border to participate in the balloting. Other Maine troops down the river are voting and their ballots will be brought in by motor trucks.

WASHINGTON IS CONCERNED OVER CAR STRIKE

By Direction of the President the Department of Labor Has Taken a Hand.

(Special to The Herald)
Washington, Sept. 11.—Washington officials today were very gravely concerned over the labor outlook in New York. The fact that the American Federation of Labor has espoused the cause of the striking carmen and that President Samuel Gompers has personally assumed direction of the struggle, means, officials here say, that unless the strike can be checked soon, it may spread throughout the country. By direction of President Wilson the Department of Labor has taken a hand. Several of its experts already are on the ground and it is expected that Secretary Wilson will go there in the near future.

At the Principal Boston Theatres

"THE LITTLE GIRL NEXT DOOR."

Tremendous Sensation of Remarkable Film Play at Globe Theatre, Boston.

Commercialized vice in all its hideousness flaunts itself before the Boston public when the pictureized report of the Illinois Vice Commission— which created such a furore in Chicago not long ago—is shown at the Globe theatre, Boston, at daily performances from 10 a. m. to 10.30 p. m.

"The Little Girl Next Door" is the euphemistic title under which the impudent revelations of the wholesale traffic in girls will be made through the medium of a gigantic moving picture spectacle. The story of the picture itself is no more interesting than the circumstances which preceded its making.

Three years ago, Senator Beall, of Alton, Ill., being profoundly impressed by the tragedy of a neighbor's child, who was lured from home and sold into white slavery in New Orleans, had a law passed by the Illinois legislature creating a vice commission with plenary powers to investigate and wipe out the infamous traffic in women. The famous O'Hara "Vice Commission" was the result. The investigation included the taking of testimony from police officials, judges, reformers, denizens of the underworld, prostitutes, pimps and dive keepers. This probe was closely followed by a sensational cleanup of the notorious Twenty-second Street district and the disbanding of the infamous "Everleigh Club." After this epoch-making event, the Illinois legislature passed a law recommending that the commissions findings, and the entire mass of testimony be put into motion pictures, and sent broadcast throughout the land, as a moral object lesson.

"The result is 'The Little Girl Next Door,'" made at an expenditure of $100,000 and months of active work in many parts of the country. Among the unique features of the film is the fact that no less than 30 of the most prominent leaders of state, city and nation freely and gladly posed for the picture, in the interest of moral uplift.

The professional talent which supports the main theme of the picture includes: Fritzie Ridgeway, Peggy Sweeney, Royal Douglas, Damon Karr, Warda Howard, John Lorenz and Jane Thomas.

Performances will be given daily, from 10 a. m. to 10.30 p. m. Admission will be 25 cents all over the house for all performances up to 6 p. m. and 25 and 50 cents after that hour.

"LITTLE SHEPHERD OF KINGDOM COME"

Eugene Walter's New Play Makes a Decided Hit at Plymouth Theatre, Boston.

The Plymouth Theatre, now under the management of the Messrs. Shubert, has opened for the season with "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," adapted from the novel of the same name by John Fox, Jr., by Eugene Walter, who so successfully arranged the same author's "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" for the stage. The second week will begin next Monday, September 11.

The thousands of readers of the novel will immediately recognize the characters of the play as old acquaintances. The story concerns the same type of Kentucky mountaineers that figures in both novels. Their loves and hates and their awful fueds back in the late fifties when the first rumblings of national strife were beginning to be heard are all shown. In the play there is a feud between the Vanilles of Turner and Dillon, which plunges upon the guilt or innocence of Jack, the boy, by no means an inconspicuous actor in the play, and who is charged with sheep-killing.

The owner of the dog, Little Chud, is really the center of the terrific storm which rages about the poor animal. This has been accomplished by Mr. Walter in an admirable fashion. The half-wild and half-splitt child who roams the mountains and who is without "puppy or manny" and whose origin is shrouded in mystery, is sure to appeal to not only the young theatre-goer, but to those who are more accustomed to the usual stage offerings.

It is based on a story which has gained for its little hero and his friend a warm place in the public heart. Mr. Walter has followed the book, closely, and manifested fine skill in introducing all the characters. The role of Chud, the "little shepherd," will be assumed by young Jack Davis, who as a boy actor has a number of successful impersonations to his credit. Matinees are given Thursdays and Saturdays.

"KATINKA"

Gig Musical Comedy Hit is Drawing Packed Houses to Shubert Theatre, Boston.

No such tremendous hit has been made in years by a musical comedy as that of "Katinka" at the Shubert Theatre, Boston.

"Katinka" is sure to be as popular as its two predecessors, "High Jinks" and "The Firefly," said one enthusiastic reviewer after the New York premier last fall of the famous musical play which is seen at this theatre for a limited engagement.

Time has proved that the prophet was not over-enthusiastic, but rather judicious in his praise, for the new musical offering of Otto Hauerbach and Rudolph Friml, responsible for "High Jinks" and "The Firefly," not only lived up to the reputation of the former two but greatly eclipsed them, both in drawing power and the creation of enthusiasm in the audiences. The third week of the engagement at the Shubert Theatre will begin next Monday, Sept. 11.

Hauerbach and Friml seem to be an inexhaustible well of musical jollity. It seldom happens that three successes so decided as these follow in rapid and uninterrupted succession. These two men are fast earning a reputation among American musical comedy producers similar to that formerly enjoyed in England by Gilbert and Sullivan.

As a triple link in the Hauerbach-Friml combination appears Arthur Hammerstein, who, in the making of the three shows has collapsed to their fullest of librettist and composer, with the added charms of the scenic artist.

The cast, headed by T. Roy Barnes, contains many of the principals of the New York cast, including Ada Maye, Audrey Maple and May Thompson, David Reese, A. Robbins, Bernard Gorcey and others.

"WHERE ARE MY CHILDREN?"

Daring Photoplay now in its 19th Week at Majestic Theatre, Boston.

Completing its second month in Boston, "Where Are My Children?" that wonderful photoplay is as popular as it was the first week, and there are no signs yet at the Majestic Theatre that Boston is tiring of the play. The same crowded lobby and sidewalk, the same line of ticker purchasers attest the favor with which the show is held. The ninth week begins next Monday, September 11th.

Of course the main attraction of the play in its truthful representation of conditions which though deplorable, are known to exist, and while it is not the expectation that the showing of the picture will entirely correct them.

conditions, it is expected that the attention called to them, will, in a great measure, ameliorate those conditions. In all the discussion as to, Birth Control and kindred topics which the picture has caused, slight has been lost temporarily of one of its most beautiful features, the incidental music, which so fits the situations and emotions, that its influence is felt rather than observed. As a well-known musical critic said, it is so perfectly adapted to its purpose that one fails to notice that there is any music; a condition that is ideal.

The novelty, charm and daintiness of that very different sort of a musical comedy, "Very Good Eddie," has carried it through very remarkable weeks of crowded attendances at the Wilbur Theatre, and it will start on its fifth week with the coming week of performances. The Era of Kerosene.

It is probable that but few people realize the vastness of the oil business in this country. According to an estimate by John D. Northrup of the United States geological survey, (how appropriate, by the way, that his name should be John D.), the production for the first six months of this year will be about 140,000,000 barrels. And it is quite probable that those who have given no particular thought to this gigantic industry have little idea of the vastness of the territory that produces oil. The chief producing states are Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana, Wyoming, Montana and California, while Colorado, Michigan and Missouri contribute a share. California leads at the present time, its output for the first six months of the year being 43,500,000 barrels, this record being exceeded only by Kansas and Oklahoma, which together turned out 50,500,000 barrels. The total from all the fields for the six months is 140,000,000 barrels.

Verily, this is "big business." What thoughts it brings to people old enough to remember the days before kerosene, when the "tallow dip" was the leading means of illumination. Then came burning fluid and camphene, giving a better light than candles, but being almost as treacherous as dynamite. Finally kerosene oil was discovered and then followed a revolution in the matter of lighting. It was a long time before the oil was refined as it is now, and at first the lamps for its use were very imperfect, but the scientists and inventors got busy and it was not many years before kerosene oil and lamps became somewhere near what the necessities of the case called for. This wonderful oil from the bowels of the earth, although possessing dangers of its own, became the leading agent of illumination the world over.

But it is a faint torch in comparison with the electric lights which now practically turn night into day. There have been amazing strides in this field since the discovery of kerosene, but no greater than in practically every other field of human activity. In going from the candle to the electric light we have also gone from the ox team to the trolley car and the automobile. We are living on the same old globe, but in a different world. Improvement has been as great along all lines as in the matter of lighting, something which is impossible of realization by those who cannot remember back to the days of the "tallow dip."

"Pop" Geers, the veteran reinsman, drove the greatest race in his career of 45 years a few days ago on the Charter Oak track in Hartford, Conn. Mr. Geers has long been the most famous driver on the American race course, but Mr. Cox of New Hampshire, who put him to the supreme test in the greatest six-heat race in history, showed that "there are others."

The government is exceedingly generous in the matter of pensions. Not only has it increased the pensions of Civil war widows, but has restored those that had been sacrificed by marriage. By such means are the pension rolls kept well padded in spite of the constantly decreasing number of pensioners.

It is reported that in some parts of New England many fields of grass have been left uncultivated owing to the scarcity of labor. But men who paid from $3 to $5 a day for help this year, as many are reported to have done, did better than to leave their grass standing. In view of all the conditions hay will be hay before another season, notwithstanding the big crop of this year.

An investigation by the federal trade commission has uncovered what seems very much like a trust in the fertilizer industry. According to some authorities there are good trusts and bad trusts, but the least that can be said of a fertilizer trust is that it has a very strong smell.

Henry Ford and the Chicago Tribune will both get some advertising out of the $1,000,000 libel suit which the former has brought against the latter. What more the case will amount to remains to be seen, albeit it is a "frightful" thing to be called an anarchist.

The purchase of the Danish West Indies goes through with colors flying. Denmark gets a good price for the property, and it is probable that the United States gets as good value for its money as it does in some of its other investments.

At last the president and Congress members are at liberty to give their attention to the campaign, which is rapidly getting under headway.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The News From Maine

(From the Christian Science Monitor)
Maine, the most northeasterly state of the American Union and the youngest as well as the largest of the New England group, holds elections biennially. Its next election will be held on Monday, Sept. 11. Because the Maine election precedes elections in a great majority of the states, and the presidential election every fourth year, and because the trend of its campaigns and the result of its balloting are taken in advance in a measure the bent of political thought throughout the nation, it invariably receives a great deal of popular attention. The saying, "As goes Maine, so goes the country," was long in common use, but too frequent exceptions to what at one time appeared to be a rule have well-nigh committled it to desuetude.

Nevertheless, in every recurring presidential campaign the news from Maine is read with interest and often with unconcealed concern. That is the case, at present. It is also the case at present, as it has been every fourth year for decades, that both parties have put their greatest efforts and strongest men into the Maine contest with the view of procuring in November from the moral effect of a victory in September. Maine today is ablaze from the eloquence of the most enterprising and impressive spellbinders at the command of the national campaign committees. The political parties are represented in the Pine Tree state by representatives, by senators, by men who have held exalted positions in the service of the nation, and by men who are landlubberly ambitious to hold such positions again, and they are talking to a stalwart yeomanry whose ancestors cast their lots with or voted for William King, Knell Lincoln, Samuel Emerson Smith, John Winchester Dana, and others whose portraits adorn the walls of the Augusta Hall of Fame. Let it not be thought for an instant that in Maine the above the name of Edward Kent, for whom Maine went to put it mildly, with precipitate impetuosity, is forgotten. Nobody who pretends to know anything about Maine could ever overlook the fact that the state on a memorable occasion went for Governor Kent. And there are other names, like Hannibal Hamlin and Anson Poye Merrill, to say nothing of James G. Blaine and Thomas Brackett Reed, two of the greatest speakers that ever directed the proceedings of the United States House of Representatives, that should by no means be overlooked; but to include all the sons of Maine who have enlivened the politics of the country and illuminated the pages of its history would be to publish something bearing a resemblance to a directory.

It is noted by historians that it was the Democratic majority in Maine which effected its separation from Massachusetts, and that "for many years after this separation it was to be found, if not leading, well up in the Democratic column. But the state was rather anti-Federalist than Democratic from 1820 to 1853. At all events, the dominant party through this long period lost control by advocating the prohibition of the liquor traffic. The Maine law turned the tide in favor of the Republicans, and the advantage gained by the latter was strengthened by their stand on slavery. For twenty-two years Maine would hardly look at a Democrat, but in 1873 a remarkable thing happened. That year Alonzo Garcelon, in an election contest that went to the Legislature, was chosen Governor by a union between the Democrats and the Greenbackers. Another contest arose in the following election, and the spectacle of two Legislatures, rival Governors, martial law, and other things that were supposed to exist only in states under reconstruction, was presented by Maine to the nation.

After Garcelon came the Democratic victory of 1880, and after that, not exactly the deluge, but a long succession of Republican sweeps, to be broken in 1910 by Plaisant. Then the Republicans came back with Haines, and then the Democrats returned with Curtis. There used to be a popular political song entitled "Have You Heard From Maine?" A catch phrase of the same import has survived it. Next Tuesday, from one end of the country to the other, the old song title and the surviving catch phrase will be heard again, and the manner in which the faded interrogation is received will depend upon whether the person questioned is for Woodrow Wilson or for Charles Evans Hughes, or for neither.

Social Rebuilding After the War
(From the Christian Science Monitor)
In the speech which he delivered at the dinner given in his honor by the London recruiting staff, recently, Lord Derby emphasized, in a manner particularly apt and cogent, the obligation laid upon the country to help in every possible way, after the war, the return of the soldier to civil life. Would any of them, he asked, when the war was over, think their duty was complete unless they had something to do with the restoration to civil life of the men whom they were now daily engaged in sending into the army? A general scheme would doubtless be prepared by the government, but he hoped they would not wait until the end of the war for that scheme. He wanted to see it put before the country in such a

The Primary Results
(From the Nashua Telegraph)
No Republican can regret the outcome of the primaries. By clear cut majorities the members of the party in this state signified their choices for standard bearers from governor down. Though the vote was light, it is apparent that the percentage carried pretty plainly records the sentiment among the party members in all sections of the state. The primary canvasses were in the main conducted on a high plane, and we know of no word of any successful nominee has spoken or his friends have spoken, that must be regarded as unfortunate in the contest which now opens to end only when the votes shall have been cast, November next.

CURRENT OPINION

Forbidding Sale of War Munitions Would Not Avert War.

The suggestion for a league of nations to enforce peace does not go very far—not far enough to please those who look forward to a universal federation of the world, but probably quite as far as is practicable. It proposes that the members shall agree not to go to war with one another before submitting the matter in dispute—whether strictly a question of international law or not—to an impartial body selected to examine it and that all the members shall pledge themselves to declare war on any of their number that begins hostilities against another without submitting the question in that way.

One of the great objects of all men who desire peace is to reduce the armaments of Europe, to lessen the extent of preparation for war. But among their most cherished plans is that of forbidding the sale of munitions by a neutral nation to a belligerent, which would have exactly the opposite effect. It would put a premium on preparedness, for when war broke out the unprepared nation, if unable to purchase munitions abroad would be in a hopeless condition against its neighbor armed to the teeth.

If we want to reduce excessive armaments and the spirit of militarism that goes with them we must seek to curtail the advantage of preparedness, and that is precisely what is done by securing delay before hostilities can begin.—By President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard.

This is, of course, a project which has been urged for some time by those who recognized that all preparatory work possible for meeting conditions which will obtain on the conclusion of peace, should be commenced as soon as possible. There is, it is satisfactory to note, evidence that the government is awake to the importance of the matter and, already, several valuable outlets for settlement have been investigated on government authority. The point, however, upon which Lord Derby rightly, it would seem, laid special emphasis, was the necessity for supplementing any official scheme which might be devised, no matter how complete or far-reaching it might be, by voluntary effort. Just as there had been, he said in effect, a general voluntary effort to secure recruits for the army, there ought to be a voluntary effort, just as enthusiastic, just as continuous, just as earnest and determined, to secure for those soldiers who returned as easy a way as might be possible back to civil life.

There can be no question that such a view of the matter is a just one. A famous statesman, remarked some years ago, on a notable occasion, that without good will there was very little that could be accomplished, but that, given good will, everything could be accomplished. With a general willingness to help even such a problem as labor conditions after the war need have no terrors, either for labor or for capital. If it should ever fall to my lot, Lord Derby said at the close of his speech, to call on men in times of peace to do this or that, it would never be to call on them to support this or that political party, but to support the welfare of the soldier whom we are today sending to the front. Such an attitude is one which many, there can be no doubt, will feel drawn to endorse and adopt for themselves.

Hughes United Party

(From the Malden, Mass.) News)
Those Democratic newspapers that have been shouting to Mr. Hughes: "What would you have done?" are getting their answer from Mr. Hughes in a frank uncompromising way. Mr. Hughes like most republicans would have done far different from the democratic president. In fact it is this difference that makes two political parties. President Wilson is a Democrat of Democrats. He has kept all of his campaign promises and kept them speedily and thoroughly. No Democrat can consistently vote against him. But it must be remembered that a majority of our voters did not favor those policies or vote for them in 1912. It was because the vote of the majority was split that Mr. Wilson was elected. That majority now united is still opposed to Democratic policies however well they may satisfy the Democrats. Mr. Hughes will inaugurate party policies that are not of Democratic birth. His answers to the continual questioning as to what he would have done are being clearly defined. There is no doubt about what Mr. Hughes would have done regarding the eight hour wage law for the workmen. With splendid courage for a man in public life he has taken his stand on that question so decisively that those questions about what he would have done will soon lose their force.

The Primary Results

(From the Nashua Telegraph)
No Republican can regret the outcome of the primaries. By clear cut majorities the members of the party in this state signified their choices for standard bearers from governor down. Though the vote was light, it is apparent that the percentage carried pretty plainly records the sentiment among the party members in all sections of the state. The primary canvasses were in the main conducted on a high plane, and we know of no word of any successful nominee has spoken or his friends have spoken, that must be regarded as unfortunate in the contest which now opens to end only when the votes shall have been cast, November next.
The canvasses which Hon. Henry W. Keyes of Haverhill nominee for governor, conducted, while aggressive, was particularly clean cut. He met criticism—and in many cases unjust criticism—with calmness and forbearance. On every issue that was raised against his candidacy he responded fully and freely, as well as frankly. His position on every question is known. It has the sanction of his party. He stands squarely upon the national platform, and that platform will be emphasized and endorsed. He is a leader of whom the party may well be proud.

In this congressional district, Hon. Edward H. Wason was re-nominated without contest. The term which he is just concluding has shown him to be a legislator at Washington of whom New Hampshire may well be proud, and we predict his re-election in November by fully as large a majority as was given him two years ago.
In the first district, Mr. Sulloway that sterling Republican war-horse, the full place of the Merrimack, is re-nominated, attaining most as many votes from his party members as both of the primary opponents, either of whom would have made good congressmen. The district went on record as desiring a continuance of the experience and grand service Mr. Sulloway has given his constituency in Washington.

New Hampshire is a Republican state. This is a Republican year. The outcome of the primaries augurs well for a sweeping success and we hope and believe that ballots next November will record majorities larger than ever before have been given Republican candidates in the Granite state.

The Strike Issue in This Campaign

(From the Manchester Mirror)
The politicians on the stump are talking about the tariff, Mexico, Preparedness, our negotiations with Germany, etc. These and similar issues are of vast importance. But as you hear people on the street, they are not talking so much about these matters. They are discussing a great new question that was put up to them by the threat of a railroad strike. This issue the stump speakers are handling quite gingerly. They fear it is loaded with dynamite, that it is a double edged sword that cuts both ways.

The people of the United States were put in jeopardy of a very frightful calamity. It is estimated that a general railroad strike would cost the people $1,000,000,000. But the matter at issue was merely one involving the payment of perhaps $50,000,000 in wages.

It is fundamentally wrong that the people of the United States could be made to suffer a loss of $1,000,000,000 in order either to obtain $50,000,000 for the railroad employees, or to save that amount to the railroads. It shows that our laws and social structure have broken down.

In many ways this issue is the gravest problem that will face the newly elected president and congress. The people are everywhere discussing it. They demand to know what each party proposes of safeguards to meet such a situation. The politicians will tend to squirm and twist to avoid committing themselves.

The people demand uninterrupted operation of railroads through all labor disputes. It is a necessity of our economic life. The candidates and the politicians are entitled to time to think out what is a new situation in our economic life. But in a few weeks the people will insist on knowing just what definite steps they propose to prevent the recurrence of any such threat.

PEOPLE'S OPINIONS

Why Is the Navy Made a Dumping Ground?

Editor of the Herald:
Those who are conversant with the personnel of the enlisted men of the navy have noticed during the past decade the great improvement in the character of the men who have donned the uniform of Uncle Sam. This has been very noticeable in our city where both bluejackets and members of the marine corps mingle and are respected by our citizens in general. I was somewhat surprised in reading of the account of a recent session of court in our state where a person charged with passing a worthless check was given a chance to enlist in the navy. The question naturally arises why make the navy a dumping ground for men of this class? Many of the older men in the service, who climbed the ladder step by step, have endeavored by the discipline at their command, to make men out of some of their comrades who would transgress the rules of society, but it seems rather hard to have criminals forced into the service, rather than face a reformatory sentence. The chances are decidedly against people of this stamp being any great addition to the service or even fit associates for the men who have labored on a plane where it could be universally respected.

BIRTHDAY OF FAMOUS WOMAN

Mrs. Mary H. Pike of Newfields Is 101 Years Old Today.

Mrs. Mary H. Pike, widow of Rev. James Pike of Newfields, will start today, Monday, on the second century of her life, it being her 101st birthday, and she starts off in good health, and with all her faculties unimpaired, with the exception of a deafness. She is probably the oldest woman in the state, and one of the oldest in the country, and a lady of remarkable personality and keenly interested in present day affairs. Last year on the occasion of her 100th birthday she remarked that she never had celebrated her birthday, and knew no reason why she should commence on her 101st.

On the occasion of her birthday the family make it a sort of a family reunion, and the friends and neighbors send congratulations.

Mrs. Pike was born in that part of Newmarket which is now Newfields, Sept. 11, 1815, the daughter of Rev. John and Mary (Dodge) Brodhead. Her mother was the daughter of Capt. Thomas Dodge of Ipswich, Mass., and her father was born in Pennsylvania, but came to this section of New England when a young man. He was at one time preaching elder of the New London, Conn. district, which extended from Long Island Sound to the Canadian border, and was the founder of New Hampshire Methodism.

When she was 9 years old, in 1824, her father moved into the present residence, she having spent her childhood in the old home near Rockingham Junction, which is now standing.

Mrs. Pike is a devout Methodist worker, and attends church in good weather, and was an attendant at the annual Methodist campmeeting at Hedding which she has not missed since it was started there in 1862.

She is keenly interested in the Mexican affairs, and the departure of the troops to the border are of much interest to her as her husband, Rev. James Pike, was colonel of the Sixteenth New Hampshire in the Civil war; her brother, Thornton Brodhead, served in the Mexican war, her son James Pike also being in the same regiment and acting as orderly to his father, Col. Pike. Her grandson, James O. Pike went to the front as a member of the First New Hampshire regiment in the Spanish War, while her father, Rev. James Brodhead, served in congress under President Andrew Jackson.

Her brother John Brodhead was long comptroller of the United States treasury, receiving his original appointment from President Jackson, and her other brother who served in the Mexican war, was under President Franklin Pierce when he was a colonel. Her son, James T. Pike, was in Washington holding a clerical position, during the administration of President Lincoln, and was complimented by him for his punctuality. Thus she has an unusual interest in the national affairs, and watches the developments from day to day.

LONG DISTANCE LOVE

Cupid Does Funny Things to Victims—Couple Married Over Wire 2000 Miles Apart.

Miss Bessie Inez Butcher was married in the office of A. G. Lewis, Justice of the peace at Portland, Indiana, to David H. Goff, who is in the camp of the Indiana national guard in Llano Grande, Tex., more than 2000 miles away. The ceremony was witnessed by the bridegroom's mother, the bride's sister and other guests. Lewis filled out an application blank for Miss Butcher and sent it to Goff with instructions to go before a notary public and make the proper affidavit. Goff also signed a statement that he took Miss Butcher to be his lawful wife. The papers were returned from Texas a few days ago and a license was issued Saturday.

Mrs. Pike was educated at the Newmarket academy, which stood in the present Newfields, and has since been removed to Wilbraham, Mass., and is now Westway academy. At the age of 15 she joined the Methodist church, and is one of the surviving members of the Ladies' Aid society which was formed in the early 40's.

Her husband, Rev. James Pike, was like her father at one time presiding elder of the Dover district of the New Hampshire Methodist conference, and served two terms in congress, and besides his record in the Civil war, was the Republican candidate for governor of the state in 1871, but was defeated by James A. Weston of Manchester.

Mrs. Pike is the last of the family of twelve children, and most of them held government positions. She comes from a truly patriotic family and is a highly interesting lady.

Mrs. Pike has one daughter now living, Mrs. C. B. Kendall, who makes her home with her, and has several grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Mrs. Frank B. Locke of Boston and Mrs. Franklin O. Poole of Mount Vernon, N. Y., being her granddaughters, and her grandsons are Edward Kendall of California and James O. Pike of Portland, Me. Her great-grandchildren are Franklin O. Thornton and Mary R. Poole and John and Eleanor Locke. The birthday of John Locke, her great-grandson, falls on Sept. 11.

All eyes are focussed on Maine today.

GENERAL PERSHING GOING INTO MEXICO.

W. H. Durborough, the world famous correspondent, described by former President Roosevelt as the "man who has seen more war than any other man living," arrived in Portsmouth today and is registered at the Hotel Rockingham. Mr. Durborough has just returned from Mexico where he was with the Pershing expedition and which he accompanied as far south as Parral. This correspondent's Mexican experiences have been exceptional; he was with Pancho Villa in 1914, at the Vera Cruz conflict and more recently with the regulars and left that country after he was able to secure sufficient motion pictures showing the manner in which the state militia has been able to meet actual war conditions. On Wednesday afternoon and evening Mr. Durborough will show at the Portsmouth Theatre, a remarkable series of pictures, representing his experiences, and entitled "With Durborough on the Flying Line." These pictures will also include his experiences on the war fronts with the German, French and British forces. Mr. Durborough arrived in Portsmouth in the same automobile which carried him through Europe and Mexico and this machine is quite a curiosity in itself.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT.

Mr. and Mrs. Levi Little announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ida Evelyn, to Wesley Peirce Downing.

The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held in the Y. M. C. A. parlor Wednesday at 3 o'clock. A full attendance is desired.

WILSON IS NOT SINCERE IS CHARGE OF PINCHOT

In a letter to the editor of this paper, Gifford Pinchot, one of the strongest Progressive party advocates, has made a number of strong statements against President Wilson, and in each case he has followed the charge with facts, gained after a careful study of the questions under discussion. He explains how first he thought highly of the president but later, because of his many mistakes, became not only convinced of his error, but believed that the President was an unsafe man for further time in the high office. His letter follows:

Philadelphia, Pa. Sept. 7, 1916.
Mr. E. W. Hartford,
Editor, The Chronicle & Herald,
Portsmouth, N. H.

Dear Sir:
It is the duty of every American citizen to make and support openly his choice among the candidates for the Presidency. That duty is especially solemn this year because great events and great decisions are certain to confront us during the next Administration. I am writing to give you my reasons for my own choice. If you care to lay them before your readers, please do so, but not before Monday morning, September 11.

I am neither a Democrat nor a Republican, but a Progressive. Yet there being no Progressive nomi-inee, unless I choose to support a candidate who can not be elected, I must vote for either Wilson or Hughes.

For many months after his inauguration, I thought well of President Wilson. In many respects I liked what he said about what he was going to do. He talked well and made a good impression. It was only when I began to check up what he said by what he did that I was forced to change my view.

In the end I came to see that President Wilson has a greater power than any other man in public life to say one thing but do another, and get away with it.

The facts which justify this statement are common knowledge.

We have all heard him tell Germany publicly that she would be held to strict accountability; and have learned afterward that he had actually let her know secretly at the time, by the mouth of his Secretary of State through the Austrian Ambassador, that what he said he did not mean. We have all seen him prove that he did not mean it by his total failure to exact reparation, apology, or even disavowal for the murder of Americans on the Lusitania.

I do not say that Wilson should have thrust us into war. There was no need of war. But, there was need of courage to give us peace with self-respect. If Wilson had shown courage this country would not have skidded from one crisis to the next, again and again narrowly escaping disaster.

We have all heard him declare against intervention in Mexico, while actually intervening to dictate who should and who should not hold office there; and denounce war against Mexico while actually engaged in war.

With war on every side of us, we all heard him, in his second annual message, solemnly assure the country that we had not been negligent of National defense. It was not true; and later on he himself proved that it was not true by proclaiming aloud the need for what he had solemnly assured us we already had.

For more than a year after the world-war began, Wilson did not raise a finger to put us in a condition of defense. Only the proverbial good luck of America has kept us from paying the bitter price for his unforfeitable neglect.

We have all heard him ridicule the idea of a greater navy, then declare for incomparably the greatest navy in the world, and then go back on that.

We have all heard him declare for exempting our coast-wise trade from tolls in the Panama Canal, and have seen him show our own people and the English that he did not mean it.

We have seen him elected on a platform which pledged him to a single term as President, and then become a candidate for another term.

We have all heard him declare for the conservation of our natural resources; and have seen him neglect that policy, and refuse his help to defeat the Shields water-power bill, the most dangerous attack on conservation since Balinger's effort to turn Alaska over to the Guggenheims.

We have all heard him declare for efficiency in Government, and have seen him set the park-bureau first and throw efficiency away. I have known official Washington from the inside for six Administrations. In that time the Government business has never been so badly done and so extravagantly as it is now done under Wilson.

We have all heard him announce himself as the champion of Civil Service reform; and have seen him turn the Government Department over to the spoilsman as no other President has done in twenty years.

We have all heard him declare for pitiless publicity; and have seen him conduct the most secret administration of our time.

We have all heard him announce himself as President of all the people, and have seen him, as the most partisan President of his generation, flout and oppose the Progressives, whom now, because he needs them, he seeks to conciliate and enlist.

Worst of all is this: When every principle of freedom and equality for which our fathers fought was at stake in the great war, when our whole country eagerly awaited the leadership of the President, Wilson dodged. He refused to take sides on the greatest moral issue of our time. He advised our people to be "neutral even in thought," undecided between right and wrong; while our friends abroad were fighting for the principles we held equally with them. He taught us that profits and ease were better than self-respect. President Wilson has done our Nation the most serious injury that any leader can do to any people by making as much with him from a great moral decision. Thereby he weakened our hold as a nation on the principles which alone can make any people self-respecting, safe and strong.

Having led us wrong on the ground that we must be neutral in the face of the deliberate breaking of the world's peace, he has just reversed himself again, and in his speech at Shadow Lawn now assures us that "No nation can any longer remain neutral as against any willful disturbance of the peace of the world."

It is bad enough that Wilson's foreign policy has left us, as the war draws toward its end, without a friend among the great nations of the world, and without the respect of any one of them. What is worse is that he has kept us from standing up for what we know to be right.

The ignoble standard of profit over principle which Mr. Wilson forced upon the country in our foreign relations, he has applied to himself as President. In what he has said, done, and left undone, the record shows him steadily dominated by political expediency.

These facts, and many others like them, have forced me to see that what Mr. Wilson says is no sign of what he has done, or of what he will do. The one thing his record shows is that what he stands for now he is not likely to stand for long. I do not care what his platform or his campaign declarations may be, because the common experience of us all has taught us that to him they are simply "molasses to catch flies."

Hughes, on the other hand, is a man of his word. His record as Governor of New York proves that it shows him to be honest, fearless, and free from the domination of special interests and corrupt politicians. So far as the "Conservation policies" are concerned, both what he said and what he did could hardly have been better. I am confident that under him these policies will be safe. He is a strong man who will dodge no moral issues, and he will give us an honest and an efficient administration.

As a Progressive I believe in Nationalism. So does Hughes. I am certain that under Hughes the progressive policies will fare better than under Wilson, and that the safety, honor, and welfare of the country will be in immeasurably surer hands.

I can not vote for Wilson because I can not trust him. He does not do what he says. Hughes does. Therefore my choice is Hughes, and I shall work and vote for him.

Very truly yours,
GIFFORD PINCHOT.

SOLDIERS' SWEETHEARTS MAY BECOME "WIDOWS."

Karlsruhe, Sept. 10.—The Minister of Justice of the Grand Duchy of Baden has decided that girls who have been formally engaged to soldiers killed in the war may assume the names of their dead sweethearts and call themselves widows, as though they had been married. This decision is important, because many of the girls are the mothers of "war babies" whose birth will now be legitimate.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash the poisons and toxins from system before putting more food into stomach.

Says inside-bathing makes anyone look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day, it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water and a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gases and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at any drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside-bathing. Men and women who are accustomed to wake up with a dull, aching head or have furred tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, sallow complexion, others who have bilious attack, acid stomach or constipation are assured of pronounced improvement in both health and appearance shortly.

RUSSIAN SHELL SPOILS GERMAN BEER BARREL.

Berlin, Sept. 10.—Lieutenant Fischbach, the adjutant of one of the Prussian regiments on the eastern front, writes home:

"There was joy in one of our companies recently. One of the soldiers had received a large barrel of genuine Bavarian beer from his father and he lavished his comrades to share the precious beverage with him. As the barrel contained sixty-eight gallons every man of the company would have received about a quart, but the Russians spoiled the feast. Just as the barrel was about to be tapped a shell struck the shelter of the company. A splinter of the bomb went clean through the cork and the beer gushed in all directions, forming a small lake on the floor. Two men were killed and three others severely wounded."

"TUBBY" COMES BACK AND RE-ENTERS MAJORS

"Tubby" Spencer has returned. Some months ago big league scouts were tipped by that a "youth" named Spencer was performing wonders in the backstopping department for the Vernon (Cal.) club. Hughie Jennings hustled out a scout who shortly reported:

"This 'youngster' is none other than 'Tubby' Spencer."
Hughie fired back a message saying:

"If 'Tubby' really is on his good behavior and is doing good work, grab him quickly."
Whereupon, "Tubby" was grabbed.

Now he's doing stunts for the Tigers and the way he is doing them has elicited applause even from hostile stands. Likewise, the all-around play of Spencer is adding the Junglers in their pennant fight.

Quite a number of years ago, Spencer fought for the Browns—and he was a star. Later he hooked on with the Red Sox and the Phillies. But "Tubby" became so fat that he looked—and acted—like an elephant when he lumbered upon the field. Also, "Tubby" wasn't making any strenuous efforts to keep in shape.

So "Tubby" was shunted off to the minors. Lower and lower he dropped. For a time he was out of baseball. Then he decided that he was going to show up a few folks who called him a "has-been."

"Tubby" went into training, corrected his ways and at last worked himself into a job with the Vernon club.

And now he is back in the big leagues, and something of a sensation because of his batting, and his throwing and his receiving work.

Demonstrated on Your Fixtures

Our city-wide campaign for better lighting affords you the opportunity of having the remarkable new Welsbach "C. E. Z." light demonstrated on any upright fixture in your home, without cost or obligation. All objections to other inverted gas lights are overcome in the "C. E. Z." light—and important advantages added. Through the "semi-indirect" principle the light is diffused throughout the room. This eliminates trying fare.

The "C. E. Z." light fits any upright fixture without discoloring the finish or destroying the symmetry. No chimneys are required. The new type of mantles are soft, will not break in handling or attaching, last longer and cost less than ordinary mantles.

EASY PAYMENT PRICES—With your next two gas bills a payment of 75c per lamp per month, and with your third bill a final payment of 50c. A total of $2.00. Call, write or phone.

ROSE HAS A BAD RECORD

Crook Arrested by Local Police on Thursday Forfeited Bail and Skipped.

Benjamin Frank, alias Frank Rose, who the police arrested on Thursday last during the visit of Hon. Charles E. Hughes, appears to have a record as long as your arm, according to the Boston police department.
Rose was arrested by Police Officer Condon for his suspicious notions in the crowd on that date while the officers were watching out for pickpockets. The officer did not catch Frank in the act, but as he did not give a satisfactory account of himself he was locked up on a charge of being an idle and disorderly person. The case was continued until today and in the meantime the department obtained his record. The court made the bail as high as possible under the original charge, $100, and Frank obtained the amount easily and was released. Today he failed to show up in court again, knowing the police would likely have his record, and forfeited the bail.
He has been arrested 23 times, according to the record and been convicted 17 times for different offenses in New York, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Milwaukee. He served five years in Elmira, N. Y., and has defaulted bail in Boston and other cities. He gave his name here as Frank Rose.

ANOTHER STRONG BILL AT THE COLONIAL

There is no humor of any nations of the earth as irresistibly funny as that of Scotland, and the big company of Canny Scots represented in "The Kindred Kitties" at the Colonial all this week is a picked aggregation of the best artists from the land of this to and fro.
There is a delightful strain of comedy running through the entertainment, Rose Maurer leading in this department. The music, while it has a Scotch tinge, is not wholly confined to that type and many of the latest songs will be heard during the week.
The players' band which is a part of the production has always come in for the most enthusiastic comment everywhere the Kitties have played.
The chorus is finely drilled and accomplished singing group, hornpipe sword dance and fling being as familiar to them as the clever dances evolved in this country.
The big picture program is a feature which is bound to appeal to the lovers of the best films. Every star concerned is a locally known and liked artist.
The Kitties stay all the week with a mid week change of program, which means that the latter half of the week will see an entirely new show, songs, pictures, costumes and the rest.
